PROFILE

Noemi is a Trainee at the Italian employment law boutique Failla&Partners where she is focusing on personnel management risks and their organizational implications.

She also collaborates with the Ernesto ODV Association designing training sessions for adoptive families and minors, aimed at providing support and resources to address issues related to international adoption.

PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE

After graduating from the University of Pisa, Noemi spent a period abroad in Budapest as an HR & Marketing Assistant for an international company, collaborating with leading European law firms.

She has also worked for a top-tier Italian national firm, gaining experience in both labor litigation and out-of-court employment law matters, personnel reorganizations, cross-border operations, as well as supporting the strategic decisions for HR teams of multinational companies.
